

A life of sacrifice

I place no value on anything I possess,
but for God's kingdom and His own righteousness;
and all I choose to keep or give away
is for the glory of the One who rules and reigns.

For Christ, the God Man laid ev'rything down for me;
in love He suffered in great humility.
He laid aside His claim to heav'nly home,
and took on human flesh that I might be His own.

For He who knew no sin bore my sin,
and He who knew no shame bore my shame.
As Christ was servant to His Father,
I bow before my King; a life of sacrifice
is the offering that I bring.

The light of Jesus has opened my eyes to see,
my greatest treasure the One who set me free;
And all I have, I count it all as loss
compared to knowing Christ and the power of His cross!
God has exalted Him to the highest, highest place,
His name above all names, deserving endless praise!

For He who knew no sin bore my sin,
and He who knew no shame bore my shame.
As Christ was servant to His Father,
I bow before my King; a life of sacrifice
is the offering that I bring.

I place no value on anything I possess,
but for God's kingdom and His own righteousness.

by Patricia Mock, Faye López

© 2021 Lorenz Publishing Company (adm. by Smallstonemediasongs.com)